

Michael Fabbro II, DO MBA holds a professor appointment at the University of Miami where he serves as the Chief of Cardiac Anesthesia Services and the Medical Director for Perioperative Services. His research interests focus on clinical research in the area of coagulation. He is involved in education as the Clinical Competency Chair. He several quality roles with a focus on policy making surrounding areas like blood management, perioperative glucose control and sits on the Medical Care Review Committee for the university health system.