The American Osteopathic College of Anesthesiologists welcomes you to join us through the Corporate Support program.

AOCA is positioned to provide you the opportunity to reach, with significant face time, a unique audience of leaders and influencers who are at the forefront of the practice of anesthesia and pain medicine.

About AOCA

Anesthesiologists are physicians completing four years of residency training. Physicians attend either osteopathic medical schools (D.O.) or allopathic medical schools (M.D.) prior to completing an anesthesiology residency.

The members of the AOCA practice across the nation in academic and community hospitals. Their interests include general anesthesia, pain management, critical care, regional, cardiothoracic, pediatric and obstetrical anesthesia. Osteopathic anesthesiologists embrace the principles of patient well-being and approach the whole patient to promote health and healing during the perioperative period.
